Summary: This page lists some open source alternatives to software, primarily geared toward students. The goal is not to list every single piece of open source software, but only that which would be useful in an academic environment.

I found the following interesting content from wiki by some anonymous user.

What is this all about?

This namespace is just a place for us to organize and collaborate on some files, until we set up our own wiki. Please dont mess with it (much). :)
